

The Hills by Mountain Bike

The bends

The bends near The Piccolo Marte restaurant which lead Galzignano to Torreglia.

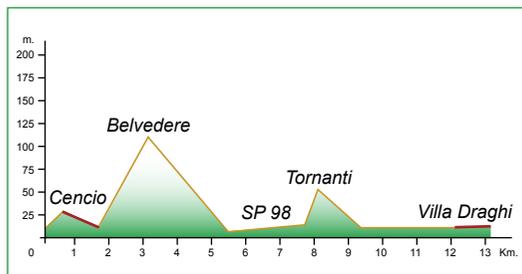

The dirt road

The dirt road at the foot of the Villa Draghi Hill.

Belvedere

From the peak near the Belvedere Restaurant you can admire a typical view of the Euganean Hills.

Distance

Duration	1 hour
Total length	13.2 Km
Maximum height	109 m
Max drop	95 m
Total drop	165 m

- Dirt roads
- Asphalt
- Towns
- Restaurants

The start

The start

The trail starts from the car park at the foot of the Villa Draghi hill in Montegrotto Terme and goes towards Cencio's Restaurant (which you'll leave on the right after a slight slope of about 600 m). Here we enter a rough downhill dirt road that bends towards the left. Cover about one kilometre of the dirt road and you'll find once again the smooth asphalt as you come out for a moment on the ring road and take the road that goes to Turri.

Turri's slope

The slope begins softly and gradually becomes steeper, but without being too worrying. After covering about a kilometre and a half you'll reach the mountain pass, near the Belvedere restaurant, and come before the view of the valley that leads to Galzignano. At the summit of the pass keep to the right along Regazzoni Alta street.

The descent towards Galzignano

Now a pleasant descent begins that's about 2 km long and that ends at a stop sign, here go to the right towards Galzignano/Torreglia, then continue for about 2,5 km skirting the hill towards Torreglia until you come across the provincial road number 98.

At this crossroad turn right towards Torreglia, climb along the bends of a small slope less than 1 km long. The following descent is characterized by a winding journey round a certain amount of bends; at the bottom turn sharply to the right and enter Volti street (then Cogolo street), that will lead you, after about 2,5 km, to the entrance of a dirt road at the foot of the Villa Draghi hill.

The final dirt road

The entrance to the path is blocked, but it won't be difficult to step over the obstacle and start pedalling again along this dirt road that flanks the hill with slight ups and downs that will take you to the main gate on the outskirts of the Villa from which you started.